Does Lost Data Break Your Heart?

Thousands of individuals and businesses lose data every year.

While adware, spyware, and viruses hiding on computers may increase the odds of data loss, hardware problems by far are the greatest cause of data loss.

For the IT manager responsible for a help desk, data loss issues and subsequent lost productivity can be a source of many head aches in addition to requests to reset passwords.

For individuals who love technology, their laptop, notebook or desktop may be the source of hours of enjoyment. They may even find love using technology.

Many people love their jobs and love using the technology at their disposal. Technology may be consider the greater enabler. Now if you are one of those individuals who does not love their job, then you might want to apply for what has been described as the Best Job in the World.

If you love to travel, your computer allows you to explore countless destinations and options as you plan your travel itinerary to Hamilton Island (if you do get the Best Job in the World). Of course, if you're both a traveler and a lover of technology, you've probably captured many priceless photos of your adventures on the road.

While data loss can give you a headache, when the data in question is a collection of treasured photographs the data loss can be both heart breaking and wrenching as was the case for a German mother vacationing in the United States with her family one sunny afternoon.

Q) What do Carnival and CBL Data Recovery have in Common?

A) Both are now found in Rio de Janeiro.

South Americans love their data so much so that CBL has expanded its presence in Brazil. Late 2008, CBL completed the acquisition of a competitor in Rio de Janeiro.

Early Carnival revelers once threw mud, water, and food at each other in a street event which often would lead to riots. While residents and visitors to Rio this month soak up the festivities of Carnival, it would be advisable to leave their laptops at home or in their hotel. However, that is not to say that CBL cannot recover data lost as a result of natural disasters, spilt beverages, or even mud.

Sorry but this contest is over now....ended the end of February.

Lost, But Not Forgotten Memories Recovered

Have you ever accidentally erased photographs from your camera?

Did you ever lose photographs of your loved ones that you had uploaded to your computer?

Has your computer ever been immersed in water or covered in mud?

If you had lost hope and then CBL rescued your photographs, we'd love to hear from you. Perhaps CBL mended a broken heart. Send us an email describing the events that led up to the loss of your memories- photographs of your loved ones, a special moment or event, or that exotic or not-so-exotic place that you love to visit.

If your submission is chosen and CBL successfully recovered your data, you'll receive a digital photograph frame to display those loved memories once again.

A Valentine Offer from CBL

If you have an old media card or hard drive that you tossed into your bottom drawer and had given up hope ever seeing your long lost photos, CBL extends to you a 50% discount off its regular photo recovery fees.

If that old card or drive wasn't reformatted, there's a high probability that the CBL Data Recovery Cupids can get your photos back. Let the CBL Data Recovery Cupids give it a shot.

Offer valid until February 28, 2009.
